Testing the Waters A Paddle and Probe Adventure

During the paddle we will be collecting, analyzing and sharing water quality data.

The data will be collected continuously using probes mounted on the front of a kayak. Parameters include: pH, temperature, dissolved oxygen, and conductivity. This data will be uploaded via cell phone and digitally displayed on a web map. We'll also be taking periodic grab samples for analysis of nutrients and bacteria.

Other event features include community programs and video updates for schools along the way.

Our paddle will be leisurely with stops to monitor and produce videos. The public is welcome to join us at our educational programs: weekend programs during the day and weekday programs in the evenings.
